

Sabbath Judgment Meeting, June 13, 2020 - MC

There is a tug-o-war going on in the spirit throughout all nations. My angels will respond. At the lifting of your staff at My direction, My angels will respond. Struggle not with this, Child. I will break all the rods and staffs of Egypt with the staff I have given you. Soon, soon, Child, I will begin to have you wield.

Soon, soon I will bring a remorseful cry on Rome. For they have turned against mercy and have embraced judgments of ridicule and falsehood. I will bring a remorseful cry upon that great city because they have turned away from Me. I will protect My remnant who still fear My name. I will raise up My lamentation and woe against Rome, that who reads may see and understand. Your tapestries and borders are defiled, you who have been chosen to sit in the seat of the scornful. A steady stream of animosity has flowed from the throne of the Pope. The man who calls himself the Pope and is recognized as the Pope, has embraced Me openly before the people but inwardly, has rejected Me. This seat of authority has embraced all religions and the New Age. I will bring a remorseful cry to he who sits on this throne. For the river of animosity this seat of authority has been settled in, this current shall be directed backwards into the hearts of the people who dwell in Rome who have looked to false idols and images instead of Me. I will judge the city filled with iniquity and are not ashamed of it. I would refrain, but they are to settled in their ways, therefore, there can be no contingency. Even if I sent you, Child, to cry in their ears they would not hear. When I raise up My lamentation and woe against that great city, then My judgment will be released. These judgments I have given you today are to prelude My judgment of lamentation and woe.

Struggle not, struggle not, Child. You cannot be bias. I have given you the strength to stand before Me in these meetings and I will continue to increase tis strength. Lord, who am I to write such things? I have ordained. Rest in My ordination and adjourn the meeting.
